Are you in the Club? ASQ that is...

I am often asked, "Why I maintain my membership in ASQ: American Society For Quality?". Well, you see, the ASQ is the global voice for Quality. My ASQ membership is all about engagement for me.

When I started my ASQ journey in the 1990s, I had no idea it would take me to where I am now in my career. Becoming an ASQ member is about meeting new people and new opportunities. It's a networking channel that allows me to learn from others and share your ideas with others in a truly quality environment.

I started my journey as a member of a section and eventually got involved in the leadership of the section. I started attending conferences and meeting new people. I met individuals from Divisions who welcomed me in and that started my journey to working with Division Member Leaders, meeting ASQ head office staff, and now being Vice-Chair of the Technical Programming Committee for World Conference on Quality and Improvement.

My career-long association as an ASQ member provides immediate access to knowledge, expertise, coaching, and support that I haven't found in any other professional outlet. I can watch ASQ TV, post a question, read past articles, and research webinar presentations on so many topics. It's self-learning at my pace with specialized experts in my corner every step of the way.

Being an ASQ member is more than just a professional commitment for me. I count my ASQ friends as family. Throughout my career, I have had the chance to smile and laugh with some of the best people on the planet. Without ASQ I may not have ever met so many supporters and industry influencers. A few have passed on and I will miss them forever, the world is a lesser place without those quality people. I cherish each network connection I have with my fellow ASQ members. I am happy to support those who now ask me for help, insight, or coaching.

I love that my ASQ journey has come full circle where I can now help the next round of quality professionals learn and grow as I point them to ASQ.org or Quality Progress or the other many resources that are offered with your ASQ membership.

Am I happy with my ASQ membership? Oh yes, I will never be without it. We are quality people, and we are all here to help each other. That's what I love about my membership.

Auditing is more than just asking questions. It is about effective communication, being a strong leader and remaining true to the purpose of the audit. Attend this session to avoid being a “Darth Vader Auditor”; the ones who use their audit “powers” for the dark side, to exert power or punish. Learn to be a Jedi Master of auditing adhering to the principles outlined in ISO 19011:2018 and using your skills to conduct collaborative interviews and build strong relationships with your auditees to ensure audits are value-added for the organization.
