Training, Coaching, and Auditing

New Horizons! New Ideas!

How exciting is it when we get to try something new?

I did just that recently on a trip to a place called Lloydminster. It was a new client, a new contract, and a new location for me. Now, I know what you are thinking...

Lloydminster in January? Yep, that's what I said!

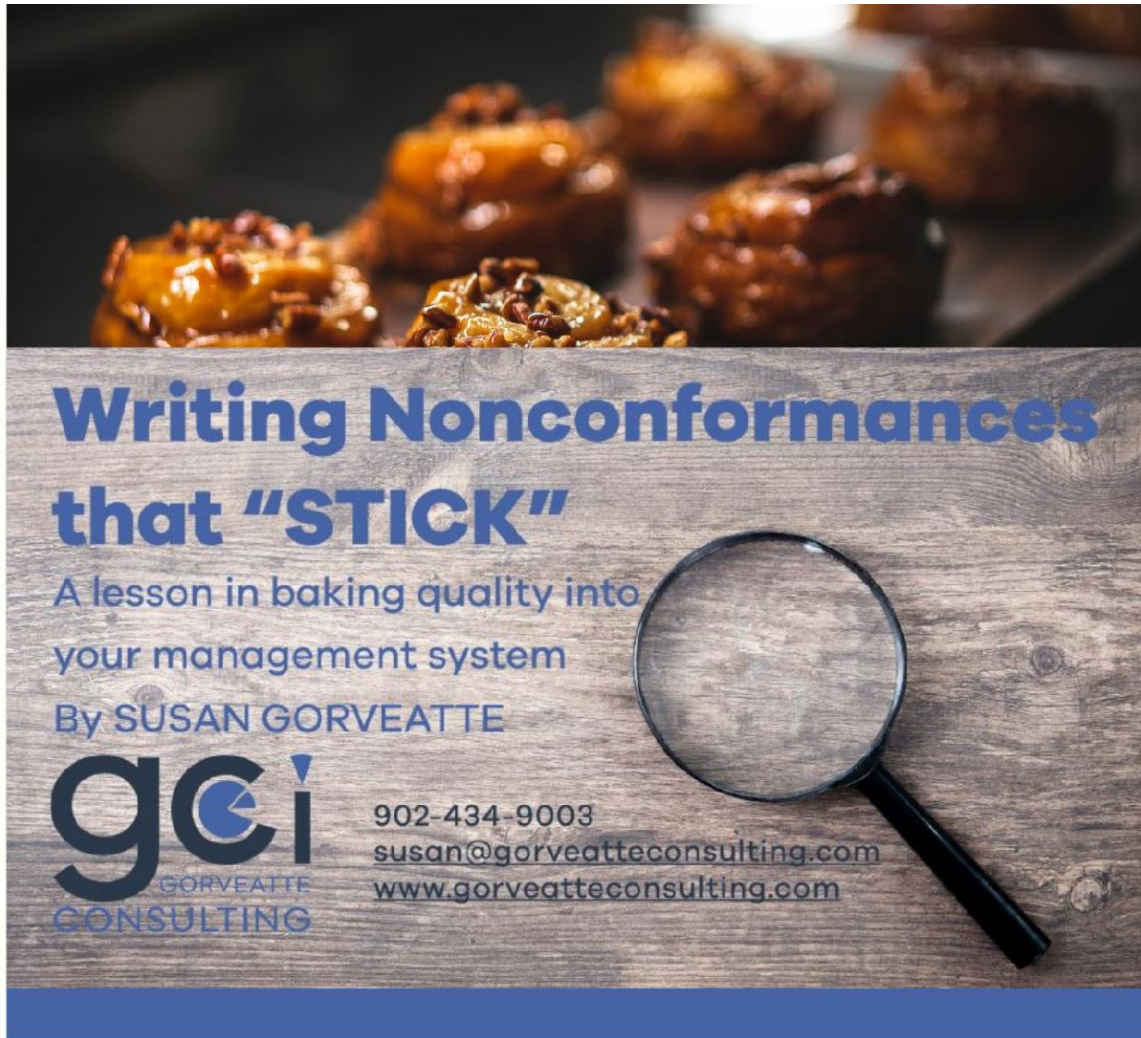

Lloydminster is a city in Canada that has the unusual geographic distinction of straddling the provincial border between Alberta and Saskatchewan? I could actually be in two places at once, that was definitely something new!

Being a successful Quality Auditor or QMS Manager may need the willingness to try new things and seek out opportunities. When we open our minds to new opportunities, we are taken out of our comfort zone. I think we need to all be willing to be open-minded and versatile. These, in fact, are good traits of a successful auditor. That was the topic of the week-long Audit training course that I was teaching there.

The "trying something new" journey could lead us down a road of effectiveness and efficiency that we may not normally have taken. We may see things from a different perspective. So why not try something new? Say yes to a new opportunity, take that journey and enjoy the ride.

Let's start your quality journey. Visit our Training Page HERE for more information on classes we can teach at your site!

Writing Nonconformances that "STICK"

A lesson in baking quality into your management system
